

ABSTRACT

A user interface for creating a printing template of the present invention comprises a paper stage showing a printing paper and an item list displaying a list of items possible to be arranged on the paper stage, as well as having a function of grouping a plurality of items selected from the item list and a function of group editing such as performing character position alignment of the contents in the grouped items.

2005-10-28 15:00